

Troop Plan For Congo Bars Whites

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Secretary General Dag Hammarskjöld Wednesday night urged the Security Council in extraordinary session to speed a military force to the Congo. It would replace Belgian troops whose ouster is demanded by Congo leaders.

Chief U. S. Delegate Henry Cabot Lodge welcomed Hammarskjöld's proposal and told the Council the United States is ready to help transport U.N. troops and supplies to the Congo and to assist it in setting up communications. He also said the United States is prepared to supply food to help meet a critical shortage in Leopoldville, the Congo capital.

Soviet Delegate Arkady A. Sobolev followed Lodge with a bitter attack on Belgium. He charged the Brussels government with aggression and with stirring up trouble in the Congo.

Sobolev said the United States has troops in West Germany prepared to intervene militarily in the Congo. He said the Council must condemn the action of Belgium and demand withdrawal of its troops.

Hammarskjöld did not spell out details of his troop proposal, except to say that big power troops should be excluded and that care should be taken that the nationalities used should not raise new complications. This apparently was intended to avoid sending white troops into the area in view of the racial tensions.

Belgians Capture Airport U. S. Fearful Of Turmoil In Congo

LEOPOLDVILLE, Congo (AP) — Belgian paratroopers wrested the Leopoldville airport from Negro soldiers of the faltering new Congo government in a 48-minute skirmish Wednesday.

The breakdown of the authority of Prime Minister Patrice Lumumba's 13-day-old regime appeared almost complete.

Both Lumumba and President Joseph Kasavubu were out of town when the Belgian units opened their first armed action at this capital. The Congolese leaders—feuding with Brussels and some of their own followers—were not consulted by Belgian authorities.

At least one Congolese soldier was killed in the brisk exchange of gunfire and grenades for control of the airport.

The paratroopers freed about 200 white persons—men, women and children—who had been menaced by the guns of Congolese soldiers as they waited at the airport for planes to fly them out of this former Belgian colony.

Great relief among white residents at the intervention of the Belgian troops was tempered by uncertainty over how much of the city they controlled. Downtown hotels, the railroad station and some other centers remained under guard of Negro soldiers.

Thronged of nervous whites, spurred by the airport clash—streamed across the Congo River by ferry to the safety of Brazzaville.

Illustrating the chaotic political situation, Kasavubu and Lumumba denounced a request by their government for military aid by an international force as a "Belgian colonialist plot." They telegraphed their view to the United Nations.

The two apparently referred to a call from Leopoldville Tuesday while they were off on a trip to secession-minded Katanga province, for American and Belgian soldiers to join Congolese contingents in restoring order.

Ike Welcomes U. N. Debate Of Jet Case

NEWPORT, R. I. (AP) — President Eisenhower declared Wednesday night the United States is ready and willing to go to the U. N. Security Council on what he termed the Soviet Union's "wanton shooting down" of an American reconnaissance plane.

The President issued a statement at the summer White House a few hours after Russia had demanded an emergency session of the Security Council on the plane incident. In doing so the Soviets accused the U. S. Air Force of aggressive activities.

"The United States government," Eisenhower said, "is ready and willing to go to the Security Council for a full discussion of the Soviet's wanton shooting down of the United States Air Force RB47 plane in international waters July 1."

The President said that in the Security Council the United States "will focus attention on the lawless actions and reckless threats of the Soviet government."

Two Planes Crash In Water

87 Persons Rescued

MANILA (AP) — Two airlines with 89 persons aboard ditched in Philippine waters Thursday. Most of the passengers and crews on both planes were reported saved.

Both planes apparently had mechanical trouble.

One was a Northwest Orient D7C that went down about 85 miles east of Manila on a flight from Tokyo and Okinawa. An airline spokesman here said "there appear to be survivors" and other reports said 56 of 58 persons aboard had been picked up by rescue aircraft or were on life rafts in the shark-infested waters near Jomalig Island.

The second plane was a Philippine Airlines DC3 carrying 31 persons. The Philippines constabulary reported it crashed in shallow water off Mindanao Island in the southern Philippines and that all 27 passengers and 4 crewmen reached shore safely.

The U. S. Coast Guard announced later that 56 persons survived the ditching of the Northwest plane. It said they were found in life rafts and that 23 were being taken ashore.

The Coast Guard said there was no immediate information on the fate of the other two persons aboard the D7C.

The rescue center of the Civil Aeronautics Administration at Manila Airport said the two a man and a woman—were listed as missing. The rescue center said the survivors had been picked up by U. S. Navy, Air Force and Coast Guard rescue planes.

Rescue officials said a U. S. Coast Guard flying boat had landed at the scene of the Northwest ditching and soon airline officials said word had been received that 56 survivors were either in life rafts or aboard rescue aircraft.

The airline said 44 passengers boarded the plane in Tokyo for Manila and seven more passengers got on at Okinawa. The plane carried a crew of seven.

Shortly after Northwest announced that the D7C was in trouble and believed down, the rescue center at Sangley Point naval station said a rescue craft radioed it had sighted "red smoke signals, four life rafts and what looked like several bodies on the water in the area where a D7C is believed to have ditched."

Mrs. Sanborn Killed By Bolt

A BOLT of lightning that shot through the kitchen of a summer home in Maine killed Mrs. Evelyn B. Sanborn, 35, of Cresco R.D., Tuesday night.

Mrs. Sanborn was sitting at the kitchen table of her parents' summer home on Long Island, just off the coast of Bremen, Maine, with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick R. Hart, Concord, Mass., and her son Christopher, 12.

The bolt smashed through a window, shot through a pantry door, and passed between Mr. and Mrs. Hart before striking Mrs. Sanborn. Mrs. Sanborn's other son, Anthony, 7, was in bed upstairs.

A severe storm arose on the island, and the bolt sliced through the group drinking coffee at the kitchen table. It also set a mattress ablaze. In the wake of the bolt Mrs. Sanborn was dead and Mrs. Hart complained of a numbness in her leg.

Mrs. Sanborn was the wife of Homer G. Sanborn, III, of Cresco R.D., Assistant Vice-President, Monroe Security Trust Co. She was born in Concord, Mass., on May 14, 1925, and was a graduate of Jackson College, Tufts University, in 1947.

She and her children arrived in Maine on Monday. Her husband was to have joined her this weekend.

Mrs. Sanborn was a talented amateur actress, having played title roles recently in AAUW productions of George Bernard Shaw's "St. Joan," and Christopher Fry's "Boy With a Cart." She was an organizer of the chapter's annual book fair.

She moved to Monroe County 11 years ago. She attended Keene Chapel in Cresco.

Her father-in-law is Glen Sanborn Jr., Stokes Mill Road, Stroud Township, and is general manager of the Worthington Mower Co. and chairman of the Stroud Township Planning Committee.

She was a member of the American Association of University Women, Stroudsburg, and a member of the Union Church, West Concord, Mass.

She is survived by her husband Homer; her sons Christopher and Anthony; a brother, Frederick Hart, Jr., of Norwell, Mass.; and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Hart of Concord, Mass.

Funeral services will be Friday at 2 p.m. in the McRae Funeral Home in Concord, Mass.

Candidates Jockey For Nod As V. P.

CONVENTION HALL, Los Angeles (AP)—Jockeying for the Democratic vice presidential nomination reached a peak Wednesday with half a dozen party leaders standing more or less available in the wings.

If Sen. John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts does the expected and wins the presidential nomination, he will choose his own running mate.

Kennedy's friends said he hasn't made up his mind yet and won't until he gets first prize in hand.

Stu Not Interested

On this basis, Sen. Stuart Symington of Missouri appeared the most logical choice for the second spot. Symington says he isn't interested in it, and wants only the presidential nomination. But other men have said that in the past and changed their minds.

If some of Kennedy's ablest strategists have their way, Kennedy in victory would urge Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas to come on the ticket with him.

Nobody close to Johnson thinks he would take it. He is running for re-election to the Senate and he has a leadership job in that body he has said carries more responsibilities than the vice presidency.

Freeman Hoping

Outside of presidential contenders Johnson and Symington, the vice presidential field was rather wide and somewhat eager.

Gov. Orville L. Freeman of Minnesota, who placed Kennedy's name in nomination, obviously thought this appearance might give him an inside track for second place.

Crowding on Freeman's heels were several other availables.

These included Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington, a pal of Kennedy's, and Govs. Herschell C. Loveless of Iowa and George Docking of Kansas. There was some mention of Gov. Gaylord A. Nelson of Wisconsin.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Navy said Wednesday night the Soviet trawler which cruised close into the Atlantic Coast last April was an "electronic spy ship" engaged in a bold reconnaissance of American defenses.

This assertion came in a statement which followed by only two days the formal charge by Russians that the American RB-47 plane shot down by Soviet fighters was engaged in a spy attempt.

The gist of the statement: The trawler, Vega, equipped with 11 antennas capable of checking in on any frequency, showed up in the midst of tests being conducted by the U. S. nuclear submarine George Washington April 26. Later the Vega cruised down the coast as close as 12 miles off Cape Henry, Va.

Near U. S. Base
That cape is at the approaches to the big U. S. Navy base and fleet anchorage in the Norfolk and Hampton Roads area. The spokesman said the Navy and Air Force were conducting a joint exercise in the area at the time the trawler arrived off the mouth of Chesapeake Bay.

In the maneuvering of the trawler and Navy tug assisting in the submarine operating test about 60 miles south of Long Island, the Soviet boat suddenly "attempted to back down"—reverse—as the tug Nipmuc passed astern in conformance with international rules of the sea. The Vega might have been attempting to back into the tug.

The Navy had announced some details of the trawler's operations at the time she was first noticed and then tracked by planes and ships as she sailed south to Cape Henry and then headed east past Bermuda. However, the navy's disclosures Wednesday were in much greater detail and were accompanied by pictures to show the radar equipment of the trawler.

Stevenson Demonstration Longest By Two Minutes

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Sen. John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts won the Democratic presidential nomination Wednesday night on the first ballot. The 11 votes cast by Wyoming put him over the top with a total of 765 votes—four more than needed. His final tabulation was 806 votes. Sen. Lyndon Johnson of Texas, his nearest competitor, had 405 votes.

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The Democratic National Convention placed Sen. John F. Kennedy and three other outstanding men of the party in nomination for the presidency Wednesday night. It drove on toward a ballot and a showdown among them.

Kennedy appeared to have an unassailable lead over:

Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, Sen. Stuart Symington of Missouri and Adlai E. Stevenson, who always said he never really was running but that it would be all right if the convention drafted him.

Stevenson was the fourth to be nominated—by Sen. Eugene McCarthy of Minnesota. Waiting in the wings and stretching far on outside this convention hall, volunteers stood by to put on a roaring demonstration just in hopes they could get that draft going.

And quite a demonstration it turned out to be — 25 minutes of bedlam, and by two minutes the most bedlam of the evening.

"Bunch of Hoodlums"
The convention chairman, Gov. Leroy Collins of Florida, nearly wore out his gavel and finally got the convention back on the track after telling the demonstrators that "we can't conduct ourselves like a bunch of hoodlums."

With order back, Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt was introduced as the first lady of the world to make a second speech for Stevenson. She drew a huge ovation in her own right.

Favorite sons, here and there, got complimentary nominations, too. They included Gov. Robert Meyer of New Jersey.

Rough and tough power politics had been the order of the day.

Johnson forces attempted a last-minute coup and were thrown back. The maneuver that failed was to get the convention to hold off voting on the presidential nominee until Thursday. That would have provided time for an overnight effort to try to man the dikes against a flood of Kennedy support.

Rayburn Glum

Sam Rayburn of Texas, Johnson's political mentor and the man who put Johnson's name before the convention, huddled with convention Chairman Leroy Collins and stalked away looking glum. He said he had asked whether there would be a roll call Wednesday night, and the answer was "yes."

At that instant, Sen. Kennedy looked like the invincible man.

The youthful Massachusetts senator unofficially had enough publicly pledged votes and more to surge past the golden goal of 761 and go over the top to the Democratic presidential nomination.

Good Morning!
A spendthrift is a neighbor who makes more money than you do.

Bus Goes Over 30-Foot Bank After Collision; 15 Injured

SCRANTON (AP) — A Greyhound bus, struck sideways by an automobile, hurtled over a grass dividing strip and tumbled down a 30-foot embankment Wednesday night, injuring 15 or more passengers.

State Police said the driver of the bus, which was bound from New York to Syracuse, tried to pass the automobile and a truck on Route 611 north of neighboring Clarks Summit. As the bus was passing, the car pulled into the passing lane, hitting the bus.

The bus did not overturn, but held fast at an angle of about 45 degrees.

Sen. John Kennedy
... Democratic nominee

Sen. Kennedy Gains 6 More Pennsy Votes

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Pennsylvania's delegation to the Democratic convention held at least 66 votes for nomination of Sen. John F. Kennedy Wednesday night, with more expected.

Gov. Lawrence, chairman of the 81-vote contingent, worked until the small hours Wednesday to muster more strength for the Massachusetts senator amid grumbling inside the delegation that Kennedy would lose votes to Adlai Stevenson if he missed the nomination on the first tally.

The governor, backed by Rep. William Green Jr., Philadelphia city chairman, was back in action by noon after a brief night rest seeking additional votes for Kennedy.

The delegation added two more votes to Kennedy's total Tuesday, the governor reported. He gained four more Wednesday night.

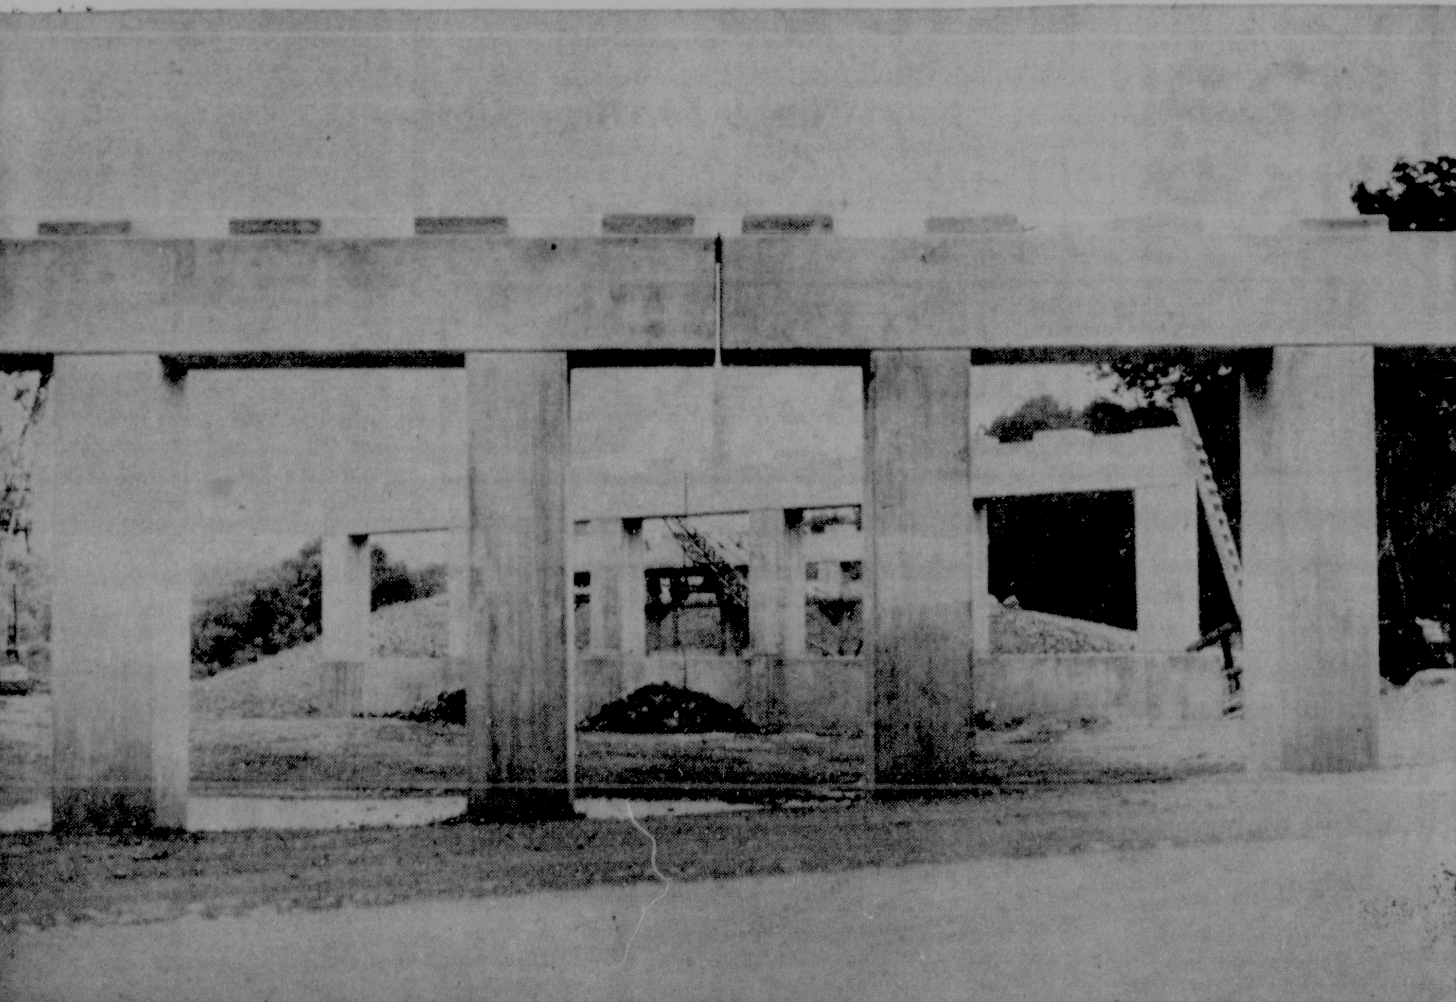

In advance of the balloting, Sen. Joseph S. Clark, a delegate at large, urged the reassessment of the 162-member delegation's position should Kennedy miss on the first ballot.

an explosion, Texas delegates stormed into the aisles, their state banner flailing aloft, rebel yells coming from their throats.

These demonstrations are about as spontaneous as baking a potato. But they are part of every convention. And they give the rank-and-file delegates a chance for fun and shenanigans and letting off steam.

The rule says there is a 10-minute limit on such things. But rules like that never stand up. The Johnson demonstration took 23 minutes.

It was Gov. Orville L. Freeman of Minnesota, supplying another accent on youth, who put Kennedy in nomination—as a man of courage and drive, a man who will be a great power for peace, for assurance and security.

Julia Meade Co-Featured In Next Playhouse Show

MOUNTAINHOME — "Paris Bound," Philip Barry's comedy starring Julia Meade and Russell Nye, will be the next attraction at Pocono Playhouse, beginning Monday night, July 18.

In "Paris Bound," Barry has written more than a brilliant comedy of manners. It is a keen, interesting and humorous study of marriage. Through all its scenes and underlying its cleverness runs an interesting problem concerning a young married couple who face an unusual situation which threatens their happiness. All ends well, however, with Barry's conclusion that the family is more important than the "injured" party.

Famous On TV

Julia Meade, feminine on-star of the play is seen on television by more people than any other person, through her appearances on two of TV's top programs—"The Ed Sullivan Show" and "Playhouse 90." Broadway audiences first saw her in a featured role in "The Tender Trap."

Subsequently, she was starred in the farce-comedy "Double in Hearts" and in a featured role last year in "Roman Candle." Miss Meade has also appeared successfully in supper clubs in Las Vegas and she recently made her movie debut in "Pillow Talk," starring Doris Day and Rock Hudson.

Russell Nye was firmly established as an important new leading man when he finished his role in "Call Me Madam," with Ethel Merman. He continued to build a career which has carried him to the top in three media of the entertainment world—the legitimate stage, television and night clubs.

After distinguishing himself as both a straight and dramatic star on TV, Nye recently returned to Broadway in the musical "Goldilocks." "Paris Bound" will be directed by John O'Shaughnessy and will continue through Saturday night, July 23, with matinees on Wednesday and Saturday. Reservations for tickets may be made by phoning LY 5-7456.

Rulings Must Stick

Reconsideration of work rules, which the railroads claim costs them 500 million a year for work neither needed nor done, is off to an unpromising start.

Four operating unions proposed the dispute be submitted to a study commission composed of representatives of the unions, the railroads and the public.

The railroads say they would accept such a commission only if its recommendations were made binding. The unions reject this stipulation because "our experience with arbitration has not been favorable."

In making this statement, the unions seem to be contradicting themselves. For they have frequently asserted, in countering railroad attacks on "feather-bedding," that many of the rules were established by the decisions of arbitrators, not at the bargain table.

Some of the rules are, as the railroads contend, obsolete, having no relationship to the present-day speed of trains or to current economic conditions in the industry.

But they represent cherished rights and privileges and there is no real hope that any of them would be surrendered through negotiation.

Arbitration, with decisions made by persons free of the influences that affect railroad management and labor leaders, appears to be the only practicable way of resolving this complex dispute.

But unless the decisions of the arbitrators are binding, months of hard work could come to nothing.

Political Caricature

Since the party's "liberals" made the greatest gains in the 1958 Democratic landslide, it is not surprising that the 1960 convention should reflect a distinctly liberal hue. But it is worth noting, for it is a fact of very considerable importance.

We are not saying the Democrats' more conservative wing is already swamped, or that the party will promptly be realigned on a purely liberal or "progressive" basis, much as Walter Reuther and others would like that. Still, that is the discernible direction.

Thus in the convention the liberal line shows in the selection of the probable nominee, in the keynote speech, in the platform. This last, among other things, contains an exceptionally strong civil rights plank drafted in disdain for the attitudes of the Southern conservatives.

Keystone speeches are usually discounted as traditionally excessive political ranting. But the clichés and distortions in Senator Church's speech should not obscure its content, for that plus the platform will be the basis of what the Democrats are offering the country in the coming campaign.

What Mr. Church and the platform are saying could hardly be clearer. We are to have a growth of Government intervention and authority unparalleled since the days of the New Deal itself. There is to be a veritable explosion of Government spending in every conceivable direction—for defense, for slum clearance, for education, to name just a few.

For the sake of the shibboleth of increased economic growth—a phenomenon the liberals either totally misunderstand or carefully misrepresent—the private activity of individual American citizens is to be curtailed, and rather drastically it would seem. We stupid citizens are to have a much larger share of the disposition of our incomes taken away and turned over to the wisdom of bureaucracy.

The monopoly power of unions, with all its menace to the economy and to individuals, is not to be restrained but intensified. The farm problem is to be "solved" by returning to one of its principal causes—rigid high price supports.

Not that all. We are to have all this and inflation too. Senator Church and others promise "cheap money," guaranteed in due course to take care of what's left of the dollar.

Revealingly, Senator Kennedy says that as President he would use his considerable influence on the Independent Federal Reserve Board, which has been trying with some success to help preserve our money.

This whole program, by the declarations of its proponents themselves is a program of statism. If that is what the American people want, it is what they will certainly get. But it is important that we all see it for what it is behind the elaborate facade of appeals to freedom and national purpose.

And it seems to us that the growing liberal ascendancy in the Democratic party almost automatically imposes a certain obligation on the Republican party. This country is not compelled to take this sharp new turn to the left; it can instead choose to enlarge the area of individual opportunity, which is the source of America's pre-eminence.

It can do that, however, only if the choice is offered. As a practical political matter at present, only the Republican party is in a position to offer it.

To provide an alternative to statism, is more than ever, both a national responsibility and a political opportunity. To fail to do so will be to turn the two-party system into a political caricature. —Wall Street Journal

George Sokolsky Says . . .

Convention Outmoded

There can be no question but that the convention is an outmoded device for selecting a candidate for President. It was outmoded in 1912 when Theodore Roosevelt battled for the direct primaries.

It is today, neither a party's choice nor the people's choice. It is a grand fiesta to excite over what has already been arranged.

Here is an enormous gathering of men and women, most of whom have no say in the proceedings and do not even vote as they choose. The galleries are filled with onlookers, visitors, the curious the gullible.

They come to watch the donkeys or the elephants. Most of them have no idea as to what is going on. The heavy contributors and the currently and formerly distinguished sit in special reservations, usually box seats. Everybody has to have a ticket or a badge.

The noise is unbelievable and constant. The lights glare. There is an orchestra which blares and an organ which does not play a Gregorian chant.

Those who march in honor of a candidate, not only include the delegates who favor him but also hired marchers who swell his ranks, prolong the pandemonium and excitement, and continue the impression of unrestrained enthusiasm.

Speakers rise to speak. Sometimes they are heard in the convention hall. They are better heard on radio and television. The speeches are never extemporaneous because no politician can risk a slip of the tongue. Besides, he wants his speech printed in the newspapers and commented upon. So he sends it out in advance.

Quietly, without excitement, the great men sit in hotel suites. They come to the convention hall only when it is absolutely necessary. They hold conferences. They meet in committees. They make deals.

Whenever a candidate says that he has made no deals, he is literally not telling the truth. The deals are made and they are lived up to. Sometimes a candidate has to avoid the direct conversation; but an intermediary can always be found.

The candidate promotes himself. He is drafted by nobody. He raises his own money. A rich candidate or one that has rich friends or has access to labor union money has an easier time than one who has to watch his nickels and dimes.

As a businesslike institution, the convention is nothing at all. It ought to be abolished. However, no substitute for the convention has been devised because neither of our principal political parties is a membership organization. They are mechanisms for gathering votes for chosen candidates. The Boss system continues in various forms. A politician is more concerned about the opinion of Lawrence of Pennsylvania or De Sappio of New York or Pat Brown of California than he is about hundreds of delegates. In the Democratic Convention, David Dubinsky and Alex Rose matter; Walter Reuther matters. These are the politicians of labor. They have access to enormous labor treasuries and can make promises of support to candidates. Nothing would please them better than to have John Kennedy as the Democratic candidate and Nelson Rockefeller as the Republican candidate. Then they would win no matter who lost.

Other groups are at work at conventions, offering huge blocks of votes. Most of them cannot deliver on the barrel-head but a nervous candidate does not want to risk losing any group that can be satisfied with a bone or a scrap.

Meanwhile there is no deliberation. What is called a Platform is intended to be a statement of principles. A large committee meets to draw up this document. It holds hearings over a prolonged period before the convention and listens to all sorts of ideas, proposals, concepts. But usually three or four knowledgeable men do the writing and their ideas prevail.

The Platform is usually too long for general reading. It covers too wide and too detailed a statement. It rarely has an elevating thought or an emotional paragraph. After all the fuss that is made over it, it is generally forgotten and it is always ignored by those who are elected under its provisions.

This then is the convention. I once had a boy made the page to a candidate. He saw all the machinery at work, closely and intimately. When it was over, I asked him how he liked it. His reply was: "That is not what they taught me at college."

Social Security Guide

Q. I have life insurance, and I know what family protection is provided by it in return for the premiums I pay. What protection does the social security tax out of my check each month give me and my family?

A. The social security tax you and your employer pay, and the tax the self-employed individual pays provides funds to pay insurance benefits to insured retired men and women, payments to totally disabled workers and their dependents when the workers are between ages 50 and 65, and survivors insurance benefits to the families of insured deceased workers. The amount of the payment an individual or family may receive depends upon the insured person's average monthly earnings rather than on the amount of the tax an individual has contributed.

Q. My wife and I both work on jobs covered by social security. Will our social security benefits be enough for us to live on upon retirement?

A. Probably not. Social security payments only partially replace the loss of income through retirement, disability or death of a family member. At your social security office, you can get a booklet explaining the eligibility requirements, and how to figure the approximate amount of your social security benefit. With this estimate, you should be able to plan ahead and make provision for necessary additional income upon your retirement.

Q. I am unmarried and live with my 68-year old parents whom I support. I have been told there are family benefits under social security. What would my parents get upon my retirement or if I should die?

A. There will be no insurance benefits to your parents in the event of your retirement. However, in the event of your death, since you are the sole support of your aged parents, they may be eligible for parents insurance benefits. It will be necessary for each of them to file an application, and present proof of age and dependency.

Q. I'm a man, age 40, and I support my widowed mother. I am trying to provide protection for her in case I should die. I am fully insured, having worked more than 10 years under social security. Can I count on social security benefits for my mother?

A. Since your mother receives her full support from you, she can receive parent's benefits at your death, if she is over 62 at that time.

Q. I am a widower receiving $38.50 per month from social security. I want to marry a lady who receives $57.00 per month as a widow. She says we can't marry as she would lose her $57.00 and we can't live on my $38.50. Is she right?

A. Under the law, we can pay the lady an amount equal to one-half of your benefit immediately after your marriage.

A. Since your mother receives her full support from you, she can receive parent's benefits at your death, if she is over 62 at that time.

The Pennsylvania Story

Looking To 1962

By Mason Denison
Harrisburg — Pennsylvanians this fall will have a taste of things to come in the governorship race of 1962.

This may appear as somewhat of an oddity in light of the top-billed presidential campaign — a legislative run-off already on the agenda this year.

It is an oddity — and yet for Pennsylvania Democrats who have taken the bull by the horns, the feeling persists that there is virtually no alternative.

It must be remembered that Democrats of the Keystone State have one basic, primary goal — retention at all costs of the control they wrested from Republicans in 1964 after 16 years of serving as the battered minority.

What happens on the national level this fall is of importance to Pennsylvania Democrats, to be sure — but to hard-headed strategists fighting for their own goal in the statewide picture the results either way are viewed as having comparatively little effect on the outcome of the local tiff two years hence.

The 1962 fray is indeed the determining factor insofar as Pennsylvania Democrats are concerned.

This does not mean of course that the presidential race this year is to be ignored. On the contrary, every conceivable support and strategy gem to insure success of the Democratic ticket will be employed.

However in carrying out this chore one eye will be pointed constantly in the direction of 1962 in search of campaign weaknesses needing ironing out between now and then. For Democrats out of the saddle for 16 long years, success strategy is a comparative newcomer in their book.

In this vein, tentative plans call for the so-called "record of accomplishment" of the Lawrence Administration to form the backbone of campaign strategy in 1962.

This would seem a logical enough move — and yet by no means has it been the rule of thumb previously.

The most recent noteworthy example occurred in 1964 when Republicans that year almost pointedly avoided mention of the record of the then outgoing administration of Republican Governor John S. Fine.

Even at the moment there are those within top Democratic circles who oppose making the prime campaign point — in fear of it being too controversial.

For this reason strategists have agreed to make it one of the focal points of the campaign in Pennsylvania this fall — as a testing or proving ground in anticipation of 1962.

Selected areas are scheduled to be test-patterned with results and reaction watched closely and meticulously evaluated. This will largely determine the extent or degree the pattern may follow two years hence.

Points to be included in this "bank of accomplishments" are expected to virtually run the gamut, with particular emphasis on those legislative accomplishments that can be chalked up to the 1959 session (and later, the upcoming 1961 session). Troubles are in the offing on this score however for this reason:

Those opposing use of this strategy insist Democrats are too vulnerable to Republican reprisals — pointing out that because Republicans controlled the upper house of the Legislature, none of the points could have been enacted without GOP approval and therefore can hardly be classified as exclusive Democratic accomplishments.

Nevertheless the strategy is due for a test run this fall.

The Allen-Scott Report

Butler Pushes Scheme

By Robert S. Allen and Paul Scott
Los Angeles — National Chairman Paul Butler is quitting a job as turbulently as he has filled it the past five years.

As a departing blast, the bitterly controversial Indian, whose term expires the day following the close of this convention, is planning to try to rush through a resolution approving the system of Democratic advisory committees he established over the opposition of the party's congressional leaders.

Speaker Sam Rayburn, Senate Leader Lyndon Johnson and other high ranking legislative chiefs flatly rejected invitations to be members of these Butler-created advisory groups. They contended that would be inconsistent with their congressional positions and responsibilities.

Principal reason for this stand was Butler's truculent argument that his advisory committees were the "policy making bodies" of the party.

This unprecedented claim was vehemently repudiated by the Congressional leaders.

In an undercover maneuver to outflank them and put the national convention's stamp of approval on his long embattled scheme, Butler will include a resolution to do that with a number of routine pronouncements that are traditionally adopted at the close of national conventions, thanking the host city, the volunteer workers, etc., etc., all non-controversial resolutions.

But Butler's will be far from that. His intent is to put the full weight of the national convention behind the advisory committees as the "policy making bodies" of the party, and by implication to spank the congressional leaders for rebuffing Butler's creation.

Whether he will get away with this remains to be seen.

Apparently in an effort to guard against a challenge of his proposal, he has allowed no one to see a copy of it. He drafted it himself, and it is supposed to be a closely guarded secret.

Convention Starts—Gov. Luther H. Hodges was one vice presidential hopeful who did not have to be asked if he would like to be Senator Kennedy's running mate. The North Carolinian, who declared for Kennedy before the convention, sent word to him through former Gov. Dennis Roberts, Rhode Island, of being available for second place. Roberts, a pre-convention Kennedy campaigner, is a close friend of Hodges.

At the height of the tense backstage maneuvering, that preceded the opening of the convention, Robert Kennedy, brother and campaign manager of the White House candidate, offered to bet $2,000 he would win the nomination. There were no takers.

House Democratic Leader John McCormack, Mass., was among the foremost of Senator Kennedy's advisers in urging the selection of Senate Leader Lyndon Johnson as running mate.

QUESTION AND ANSWER
R. R. T. Can fractures occur without injury?

Answer: At certain times, fractures occur due to bone disease in which the bone is eaten away, so that in the normal process of walking and moving, the bone may break or move.

Serious Consequences
Such cholesterol deposits might cause hardening of the arteries and sometimes lead to heart attacks and strokes.

When Dieting
But when you are dieting, fats should never be a major item in your menu. Also, keep in mind the fact that you need less fat as you grow older.

Recent research seems to indicate that a diet low in animal fats reduces the likelihood of cholesterol deposits forming within the artery walls of your body. Cholesterol is a type of fat.

On Broadway

—by Walter Winchell

Red Castro does not represent the Cuban people. He is a member of the Red Army. And he is an enemy of liberty everywhere. His tactics, strategy and objectives function in close alliance with Moscow and Peiping. During the past few months, Cuban diplomatic missions throughout Central America and Mexico have been intensifying propaganda and political activities. Their primary target is the United States. And their ultimate objective is the conquest of Latin America. The foregoing facts cannot be casually dismissed. Castro as an individual is a dangerous lunatic, of course. More important — he has the political, economic and military support of Khrushchev and Mao. In other words, the Moscow - Peiping - Havana Axis clearly endangers the security of the U. S.

The aggression of Cuba's Reds — and their Moscow-Peiping partners-in-crime — can be fully documented: On March 18th, 1960, the N. Y. Times reported: "In Panama the program has been clearly anti-United States. The Cuban Ambassador there, Jose Antonio Carrera Vela, has expressed his anti-American attitude on many occasions. Shortly after his arrival he was widely quoted as having charged that troops hostile to the regime of Premier Fidel Castro were being trained in the Canal Zone. The two most active Cuban missions in the area are those in Honduras and Mexico. In Honduras the newly appointed Ambassador, Silvio Sorhegui Mato, has recently been far the most active member of the diplomatic corps in the capital, Tegucigalpa. He has been principally active in the National University, where he is a favorite of left-wing student organizations."

When you recall the riots incited by Red students in Japan, the foregoing takes on the grimmest significance.

The story continues: "In Mexico the principal activity of the Cuban Embassy has heretofore been in collaboration with the Soviet Embassy. In the past there has been an extremely close diplomatic working relationship between the Cuban Ambassador, Dr. Salvador Massip y Valdes and the Soviet Ambassador Vladimir I. Bazkin. Two members of the military attaché's staff of the Soviet Embassy are living in adjacent apartments and are frequently seen in one another's company.

"In Panama there is a Society for the Defense of the Cuban Revolution. The Ambassador, Senor Carbera Vela, has been active in organizing newspaper workers in Panama and the second largest city, David. It has been reliably reported that the Cuban Embassy has been instructed by the Panamanian Government to moderate its activities and those of Cuban nationals."

The extension of Communist power in Panama has the gravest consequences — since it threatens our military lifeline there.

The N. Y. Times report concluded: "Cuban friendship clubs have been organized in Managua, Nicaragua. Plans are underway for daily radio broadcasts under sponsorship of the embassy there. President Luis Somoza Debayle of Nicaragua repeatedly charged last year that guerrilla invasions of his country had been planned and financed by the Cuban Government. In El Salvador there is a newly organized Society of Friends of Cuba. It includes professional people and university students. There are plans to set up a joint cultural center."

The foregoing is typical of the Communist strategy everywhere. The infiltration on numerous levels, which eventually leads to conquest, revolution and war. And those who turn their backs on Red mobsters are condemned to be stabbed there.

It is vital to note that Cuba's Communist offensive — powered by Moscow and Peiping — has extended to the United States. Several weeks ago the Herald-Tribune reported: "The Cuban revolution of Premier Fidel Castro is 'essentially a socialist revolution' and it is closer to the Chinese Communist revolution than any other recent revolution," according to Paul M. Sweezy, a left-wing American economist who returned recently from a visit to Havana."

Lippi, Fabrizio Found Guilty In Mine Deaths

EASTON, Pa. (AP)—August 3, 1959, Lippi of Exeter and Louis Fabrizio of Yatesville were convicted Wednesday of involuntary manslaughter for the death of 12 miners in the 1959 Knox coal mine disaster. A third defendant, Robert Dougherty, was acquitted of the same charge. All three were convicted of conspiracy.

The jury of five men and seven women deliberated for four and a half hours, taking time out for lunch while locked up before returning the verdict in the Northampton County court room of Judge Carleton Wooding on the fifteenth day of the trial.

The 59 year old Lippi who is president of District One, United Mine Workers of America, and Fabrizio, 61, president of the defunct Knox Coal Company, were found guilty of being responsible for the death of the 12 hard coal miners by failing to observe rules of safe mining operations.

It was obvious that the jury freed Dougherty on the involuntary manslaughter count because he had severed all connections with Knox in August 1958, nearly five and a half months before the disaster of Jan. 22, 1959. Dougherty was president of Knox from 1943 until he resigned.

The three men were accused of conspiring to hide Lippi's ownership in Knox and of defrauding the Knox miners of their contractual rights with the UMW.

Involuntary manslaughter carries a maximum penalty of three years in jail and a $2,000 fine; conspiracy, two years and $500.

It was the second conviction for Lippi in connection with Knox. Last month the UMW leader was convicted of violating the Taft-Hartley law by collecting money from Knox while representing the employees. He is appealing this conviction.

Dougherty and Fabrizio, also accused by the federal government of Taft-Hartley violations—charges of bribing union leaders in exchange for labor peace—face trial later in Wilmington, Del. Previous trials of both on these charges ended in hung juries.

Some Demonstration

TORONTO (AP)—A bus dealer left a demonstration model in a school board parking lot in hopes of selling board members. He returned to find the vehicle neatly raised on blocks. Somebody had stolen all six tires.

An average American family of four uses about 44,000 gallons of hot water a year.

Effort Made To Burglarize LaBar Office

LA BAR'S Rhododendron Nursery office was broken into some time early yesterday but nothing was stolen, investigating officers from the Stroudsburg police department said yesterday.

Police said entrance was gained by breaking a small window on the west side of the office building and prying a door open leading into the display room of the cemetery grave markers.

The person or persons tried to open a filing cabinet with a pinch bar, but gave up after breaking a handle. The cabinet contains a small amount of change on some occasions, but yesterday was empty. A note to that effect was attached to the cabinet and was ignored by the thieves.

The act was discovered at approximately 8 a.m. yesterday after an office worker, reporting for work, noticed that the front shades were drawn.

Officers from the Stroudsburg police department said they have several persons as suspects and are continuing the investigation.

Quakes Shake Greece

SALONICA, Greece (AP)—Two earth tremors of considerable strength shook Salonica and the whole of northeastern Greece Wednesday. No loss of life has so far been reported.

Teenagers Taken From Freight Train

TWO Scranton teenagers, on probation in Lackawanna County, were apprehended by East Stroudsburg police yesterday after they jumped from a Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad freight train at Milford Crossing.

Police Chief Travis Seese said the pair, 14 and 17 years old, are being held in Monroe County Jail until Lackawanna County authorities call for them.

Seese said he understood the boys are on probation for auto theft.

The teenagers jumped on the train at Scranton, were routed by railroad officials and then got on the train again as it left the city.

The DL and W tower at Scranton contacted the East Stroudsburg tower and the train was halted at Milford Crossing.

Seese said the pair ran from the train and were chased into the Brodheads Creek area where they were found hiding along the bank. Seese quoted one of the boys as saying he nearly fell beneath the wheels of the train during their brief flight.

Estimate 'Conservative'

Blue Shield Defends Rate Boost Bid

HARRISBURG (AP)—The actuary for the Medical Service Assn. of Pennsylvania (Blue Shield) said Wednesday the organization felt its proposed 12-million-dollar annual rate increase was based on a conservative estimate of its needs.

Daniel G. Wray, Camp Hill, told a public hearing called by the Insurance Department that the increase included approximately $2,471,000 to offset losses in 1959, $2,970,000 to bring reserves up to a safe level, $5,486,000 to meet anticipated increases in claims and $1,181,000 to pay participating physicians for increased fees and for new services.

In other testimony on the final day of the three-day hearing, Donald T. Diller, executive vice president, said the law hinders Blue Shield from participating in private studies to effect economies in medical insurance operations.

He explained to David Syahl, Pittsburgh city solicitor who had raised the question, that the law does not allow Blue Shield to question the methods of treatment offered by its physicians.

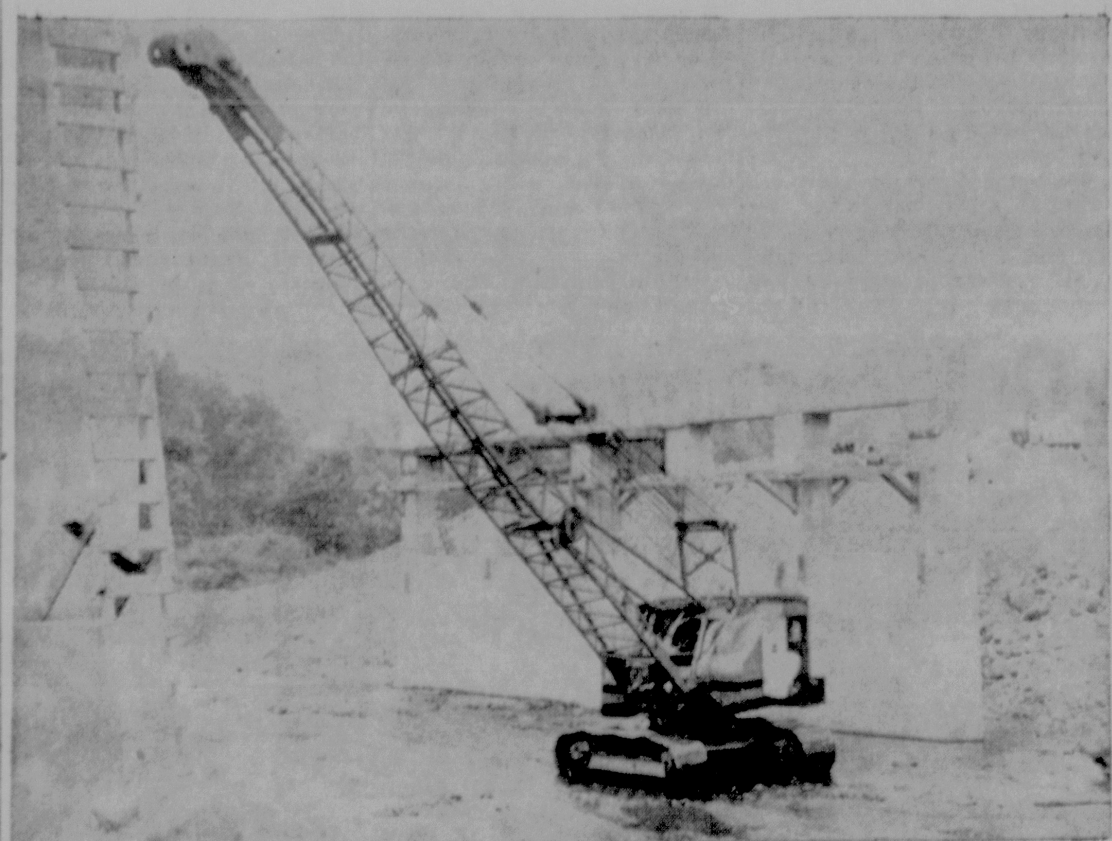

Mostly, however, the final day belonged to the actuaries, including Wray, Murray E. Lattimer of the United Steelworkers Union, and Alan F. Royer of the insurance department.

Wray, under prolonged questioning by Lattimer and Royer and by counsel for the City of Philadelphia, stuck to the mathematical decisions made in computing the rate increase.

"We feel this has been an honest and conservative filing (request)," he summarized. "We feel that it understates our needs."

The rate request, filed June 29, would affect about three-fourths of Blue Shield's 4,200,000 Pennsylvania subscribers. It is the second largest plan in the country. The rates would be raised an average of 20.6 per cent. Big group contracts, such as those with the steelworkers and government employees, would not be affected.

Also involved in the filing is Blue Shield's proposal to initiate coverage for persons 65 and over—those it calls senior citizens. These are not now eligible for Blue Shield unless they came into the plan before they are 65.

Crippled Children's Board Names Willis To Membership

C. T. WILLIS, Stroudsburg, was received as a new board member of the Monroe County Crippled Children's and Adult Assn. at its meeting in the YMCA in Stroudsburg.

The board authorized sending five children to Camp Daddy Allen, near White Haven, and two children to Harmony Hall, near Harrisburg.

Also adopted by the board was a resolution to be sent to Mrs. Dayton W. Frankenfield, expressing sympathy of the association for the long and splendid work of her late husband.

Other business of the board was the adoption of hospitalization for a young man of Monroe County for diagnostic purposes to prevent a crippling condition. They also purchased an artificial limb for a young woman in the area who recently became an amputee.

Reports were given by Walter Wyckoff, Mrs. Carl B. Rosenkrans and Pearly Webster.

Wyckoff's report was from the White House Conference for Aged People, and Mrs. Rosenkrans' report was from the state convention of the society, held recently in Pittsburgh.

Webster reported a total of $4150 was received from Easter Seals sales.

Mrs. Rosenkrans announced the annual luncheon would be held September 27, the location will be named later, and she appointed Mrs. Charles Mott, Mrs. Walter Dreher and Mrs. Charles Reinhart to the nomination committee.

James Brooks Recipient Of Scholarship

JAMES DONALD Brooks, 17, son of Mansfield Brooks, of 204 Harris St., East Stroudsburg, is one of 81 young Negro men and women who will enter 60 interracial colleges this fall with the help of the National Scholarship Service and Fund for Negro Students.

Brooks plans to attend Temple University in the Fall and study pharmacy. He attended East Stroudsburg High School and was active in the band and chorus.

In all, a total of 1,300 Negro students this year, or 50 per cent more than last year, will have been given a hand by the NSSFS in completing their education.

The 1960-61 freshman scholarship winners represent a fair sampling of the potentially talented Negro youth throughout the country. The 81 award winners come from 25 states and the District of Columbia.

The $23,000 worth of scholarships these students have received from the NSSFS supplement an additional $55,000 in college awards to bridge the gap in their funds and the cost of a college education.

The NSSFS also makes aware to the Negro high school student the doors to highly acclaimed schools which are open to him.

Two Families At Sessions In Colorado

THE families of M. F. Weiss, of Brodheadsville, and Van D. Yetter of East Stroudsburg RD, attended the Third International Wally Byam Caravan Rally at Colorado Springs, Colo.

Mr. and Mrs. Weiss and their granddaughter, Cynthia, planned to tour Yellowstone Park before returning to Brodheadsville. This is the third Airstream Trailer rally the Weisses have attended.

The Yetters, touring with their children, Dan, John and Jean, bought their first trailer in 1959 and are at their first rally. From Colorado Springs they plan to tour the west.

Over 1,000 Airstream Trailers gathered on the Memorial Park grounds at the foot of Pike's Peak by the shore of Prospect Lake. This was the largest concentration of trailers of any one make ever assembled for an outing.

The rally is in honor of Wally Byam's birthday. Byam, the father of modern caravanning, has led over 26 caravans, including ones to Mexico, Canada, Central America, Europe, Africa, and behind the Iron Curtain.

Three Named To Farm Home Committees

THREE appointments as members of the Farmers Home Administration County Committees were announced by Frank Orendo, the agency's county supervisor serving Carbon, Lehigh, Monroe, Northampton and Pike Counties.

Harry G. Sensinger of Lehigh RD 1, for the area committee which serves the counties of Carbon, Monroe and Pike. Sensinger served on the committee previously.

He is the owner of a poultry farm, an active member of the Carbon County Extension Service and Soil Conservation District. For many years he has been in the teaching field and retired after serving as superintendent for Lehigh County.

Howard P. Haas of Breinigsville RD 1, was appointed as the new member for Lehigh County. For many years he operated a progressive dairy farm located near Selstown. Recently, he has given much of the responsibility of operating the 25-cow herd to his youngest son, Mr. Haas feels that the younger generation in taking over the farm operations must keep up with modern approved agricultural practices if they are to succeed.

For Northampton County, the new committeeman is David E. Houck of Nazareth RD 3, who has served on the committee before. He owns and operates a general farm, is active in many community affairs and is a director with the Northampton Farm Bureau Cooperative. Houck is a strong advocate of the efficient family-type farm and believes they are the backbone of our farming system.

Two other members make up the three-member committees which work with the county supervisor to see that the best possible use is made of the agency's Farm Credit Service Program consistent with local farmers' needs. Each member is appointed for a three-year term.

The committees determine the eligibility of individual applicants for all types of loans. They also review borrowers' progress and aid the County Supervisor in adopting the Agency's loan policies to conditions faced by farmers in their area. Members are selected and appointed so that, as far as possible, different areas or neighborhoods are represented.

The main objective of the Farmers Home Administration is to enable farm families to become soundly established in successful, well-balanced systems of farming. Loans are made primarily for developing and strengthening family-type farms.

Annual or intermediate term loans up to seven years are made to farmers who need adequate funds to buy equipment and livestock, and longer term loans to build and repair houses and other essential farm buildings.

Long term loans are made to eligible farm families to purchase or develop an adequate family-type farm or to enlarge an undersized farm to a family-type size.

The Farmers Home Administration office servicing the above counties is located in 208-210 Post Office Bldg., Allentown.

Patterson To Address C-C Meeting

CAPT. Francis P. Patterson, chaplain at Tobyhanna Signal Corps Depot, will be the speaker at a membership meeting of the Pocono Mountains Chamber of Commerce at 12:10 p.m. Monday in the Penn-Stroud Hotel.

Capt. Patterson is the first chaplain to be assigned to Tobyhanna Signal Depot.

A Protestant minister, he has been stationed at the depot since Sept. 29, 1958.

Chaplain Patterson was born in Camden, N.J., and is a graduate of Temple University, Philadelphia and the Temple University School of Theology.

He entered the Army in February, 1952, after serving as minister at Methodist churches in various parts of New Jersey. After completing Basic Chaplain School at Fort Slocum, N.Y., Chaplain Patterson was assigned to the 25th Infantry Division in Korea.

From 1953 to 1957 he was chaplain at Fort Belvoir, Va. His most recent assignment was with the Atomic Energy Commission on Eniwetok in the Marshall Islands.

Rites Conducted For Mrs. Eisele

REQUIEM mass was celebrated yesterday at 9:30 a.m. in Lady of Victory Chapel, Tannersville, for Mrs. Catherine Eisele, 77, of Tannersville, with Rev. Robert Gallager officiating.

Interment was in the Gates of Heaven section of Laurelwood Cemetery, Stroudsburg.

Palbearers were Harry Janson, Charles Brader, Donald Youngken and John Larney.

to the former Keturah Starkey and they have four children.

Dear Abby

Round Table Decision

Dear Abby: My husband and I have been married almost forty years. We raised five children who are all married and have families of their own. I have a great problem with my husband. He comes to the dining room table with only his shorts on.

I believe in respecting the place where we eat. When a man asks the Lord to bless his food, he should have more than his shorts on. I don't approve of this and want to know if I am wrong or is my husband? He keeps saying, "A man's home is his castle."

GERTIE

Dear Gertie: A man's home is his castle — but if the "King" came to the palace dining room with only his shorts on, the "Queen" would have every right to crown him.

Dear Abby: I am at a loss. I divorced my husband six years ago after 15 years of a very bad marriage. We decided that rather than bring up our children (we had three) in an atmosphere of fighting and quarreling, it would be better to call it quits.

Two years ago our daughter was married. She was 19 and the boy was 20. They had a baby the first year. Now my daughter comes to me saying she wants to divorce her husband. She says he isn't ready to settle down and their love is "dead".

I tried to talk her into trying to make a go of her marriage for the sake of the baby, but she throws it in my teeth that I divorced her father, so how can I tell her to stick to her husband? Can you help me, Abby? She is so young.

STUCK FOR WORDS

Dear Stuck: Your daughter needs marital counsel from a clergyman, family counselor or some happily married person who has shown by his own example that marriage problems don't always have to be solved in the divorce courts. A very wise man once said, "Example is not only the best way to teach — it is the only way."

Dear Abby: Not long ago you printed the sad story of the baby girl who died from eating ordinary dishwashing detergent. I was surprised to hear how many people had this story on their lips after reading your column. Many mothers, including myself, have silently thanked you.

However, we almost lost our three-year-old boy last week. He drank ordinary nose drops! The label on the bottle did not state what would happen if taken internally. Not realizing how serious it was, we waited until it was almost too late before getting him to a doctor. Please find room for this in your column, Abby; so many people leave nose drops around where children can get at the bottle. Many thanks.

Area Stores To Handle Enrico Foods

JAMES O. BROWN, food broker, of 415 N. Eighth Ave., Scranton, have been appointed Northeastern Pennsylvania representatives for Enrico's food products, according to John Ventre Jr., president of the Syracuse, N. Y., food firm.

Ventre added that Brown's introduction of Enrico's Spaghetti Sauce and other Enrico brand Italian-style foods to area stores will be supported by an extensive advertising program in this newspaper.

James O. Brown, president of the food brokerage firm feels that Enrico's foods will have a strong appeal in the Pocono Mountains area.

"We tested Enrico's in our own test kitchens," said Brown. "We found the quality and flavor of Enrico's Spaghetti Sauce, which is enriched with meat stock, to be the best we ever tasted. It's no wonder that these products are best sellers in many other markets across the nation."

"I'm sure," said Brown, "that people in this area, too, will welcome such a quality sauce that makes spaghetti dinner at home a special treat."

Teeners Admit They Date Early, But Say It's Fault Of Parents

By Eugene Gilbert
President of the Gilbert Youth Research Co.

THIS being the season of the summer romance, we hasten to give you a report on what young people think about the well-known trend itself. The 900 and more teen-agers that we talked to agreed overwhelmingly that their generation does start dating earlier than a generation ago.

First off, we can state that there's no argument about the trend towards earlier dating.

In general, they felt that this affected scholarship, but not discipline or student health.

Like their teachers, to whom we put similar inquiries not long ago, the youngsters were inclined to blame modern society in general for encouraging early dating through school and youth club activities and what one boy termed "community togetherness." Even more than the teachers, they were inclined to point a finger at the easy accessibility of the family car on date nights.

Mom & Dad Blamed

Parental emphasis on dancing lessons, acquiring social graces, establishing status in the community by joining the local teenage social whirl and similar evidences of coaxing by Mom and Dad were cited as contributing factors to the early dating trend.

"They're having parties now for kids in the 5th and 6th grades, with dancing and late hours at our school," said 15-year-old Betty Station of Lynchburg, Va.

Ellen Haaser, 17, of Charleston, Ill., blamed the "rise of the junior high school" for giving the youngsters of her generation a feeling of earlier maturity.

Others echoed Ann Bradley, 17, of Mattoon, Ill., who noted that "both school and the town promote this premature dating habit by sponsoring so many co-educational activities like youth centers and town dances."

"I date earlier than my brother did because I learned to drive younger than he did," explained Jerry DeBoer of LeMars, Iowa.

Some, like 17-year-old Howard Goldstein of New York City, thought "increased emphasis on sex in movies, books and television" was responsible, while others, like 17-year-old Michael Pleva of Hartford, Conn., said "kids today have too much money and too easy a time getting a car to go on a date."

The youngsters interviewed were much more emphatic than the teachers in labeling early dating a deterrent to scholarship, but joined them in thinking that dating habits had little effect on school discipline or student health, although even here the teen-agers racked up higher percentages than their teachers.

Jealousy A Problem

For instance, 56 per cent of the youngsters felt early dating had an adverse effect on scholarship, compared with only 45 per cent of the teachers, and 46 per cent of the youngsters felt it had an adverse effect on discipline, compared with only 35 per cent of the teachers. Boys (63 per cent) were much more worried about the effects of dating on studies than the girls (49 per cent).

Those who admitted to going steady agreed with their teachers that certain problems inevitably will result. But where the teachers were concerned about such things as pregnancy, early marriage and fist fights in the school yard, the kids were faced with such problems as jealous love, finding the right steady and unloading the wrong steady.

"The big problem is how to get rid of a steady that you don't want to go steady with anymore," answered 17-year-old Stephanie Sahnberg of New Orleans. "Jealousy is a problem," continued 17-year-old Yvonne Bragg of Charlottesville, Va., "when you break up with a steady, it's hard to get back in the social whirl. You've kind of lost touch." Of the entire group interviewed (both those going steady and those playing the field), 45 per cent thought the habit was bad for their set, 17 per cent thought it good and 38 per cent hadn't made up their minds.

"It's a good habit," insisted 14-year-old Sandy McMullen of Quincy, Ill. "When you're alone, you have someone."

"Bad, very bad," countered Paim McCord, 15, of Crawfordsville, Ind. "Our age is supposed to be a time for fun, not being tied down to one person."

Middle-of-the-roader Donna Bultz, 17, of Carbondale, Ill., thought going steady was "a good thing for everyone to experience once. It teaches you a lot about human nature."

The girls joined their teachers in thinking that some sort of public reaction would set in before the early dating and going steady habit got any worse, but the boys figured things would get worse before they got better. Both boys and girls were far more pessimistic than their teachers in thinking that anything positive can be done about the situation.

Where 43 per cent of the teachers offered some kind of a solution, only 18 per cent of the girls and 33 per cent of the boys suggested any kind of an answer to the problem.

The pessimism of the girls was pretty well summed up by 17-year-old Joanne Kay Eyley of Crawfordsville, Ind. "Nothing can be done to combat the situation," she answered. "Kids today have their own minds. If any barriers were set up against dating and going steady, they would only find a way of sneaking around them."

The solutions offered were about the same as those suggested by the teachers: town curfews, stricter school and parental control, less emphasis on co-ed activities, a firmer parental grip on the family car keys.

"The only way to cure it," philosophized 17-year-old Ed Carver of Crawfordsville, Ind., "is to separate the boys from the girls in everything, which is just about impossible."

Spy Plane Incidents To Continue

By J. M. ROBERTS
Associated Press News Analyst
AS long as the Soviet Union offers prizes for the shooting down of American reconnaissance planes, and as long as the United States considers the Communists capable of surprise attack, incidents as that of the RB47 will continue.

The United States lost an important defensive weapon when reconnaissance flights had to stop because of increased danger and political questions created abroad. To offset that, other reconnaissance and intelligence measures have been stepped up. The United States admitted in connection with the U2 plane case that she considered herself in vital need of information about Soviet military installations, because no one could feel safe about Soviet intentions.

Elastic Soviet Boundary
The present case seems quite likely to boil down, in the end, to a dispute over how far Soviet territorial waters extend at the scene.

For years the Soviet Union has pursued an elastic boundary attitude at sea to fit situations of the moment.

Indeed, there is a general area of haze throughout the world about territorial waters, with unilateral proclamations by several countries breaching old concepts.

Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev, in his newly toughened attitude toward the United States, seems to be looking for every possible opportunity to claim before

COMING UP FAST: Where Are You — Frankie Avalon

Weather Outlook Through Monday

Extended forecast for Thursday July 14 through Monday, July 18: Eastern New York, eastern the world that America is the aggressor.

This effort now fits his public political position. It could just as well fit a secret position looking toward ultimate war.

As for the RB47 incident itself, the world is going to believe the United States this time, that the Russians crossed into international air space. The American statement is too specific, was too carefully checked in remembrance of the embarrassment over the U2 fumbling, to be questioned.

Pennsylvania and mid-Atlantic States: Temperatures will average 3 or 4 degrees below normal. Warmer Thursday, cooler Friday and rather cool through Monday. Showers Thursday and Thursday night will average one-half to one inch in south portions and one-quarter to one-half inch in north. Western New York, western Pennsylvania and West Virginia: Temperatures will average 5 or 6 degrees below normal. Turning cooler Thursday and Friday, rising temperatures Monday. Showers south portion Thursday will average one-quarter to one-half inch. Little or no precipitation in north.

Mary Carter says:

"I KNOW I UPSET PEOPLE!"

"I DON'T GO AROUND IN A 'SLOPPY JOE' SWEATER and blue dungarees, but most people in the paint industry tend to think I'm as off-beat as a genuine 'beatnik,' anyway. They pretend to be distressed because I refuse to go along with the industry's tired old methods of advertising and selling paint.

"WHAT'S REALLY BUGGING THEM, as a true 'beat' would say, is the fact that my company is growing at a faster rate than any other paint company in the United States, bar none! That means, of course, that you are taking your business away from them and giving it to me. It means my advertising and merchandising methods are working, while theirs are falling apart at the seams!

"MOST IMPORTANTLY, it indicates that you, the paint-buying public, are impressed by the Mary Carter story and by what it means to you in terms of high quality paint at realistic prices, with no part of your paint dollar going for outdated, archaic and antiquated operational practices.

"NO WONDER THEY'RE UPSET! And, no matter what they say, the one thing about Mary Carter Paint Factories that upsets my competitors most (because it's too costly for them to copy with their old-fashioned methods) is the big paint dividend that makes so many lifelong customers and friends for me: at Mary Carter paint stores, you get good paint and you get

Every 2nd Can
FREE
Of Extra Cost."

HOW IS THE FREE GALLON POSSIBLE?

"Because of my unique operational economies, I can manufacture high quality paints, enamels and varnishes at less cost and, in addition, I'm satisfied with a profit of pennies per gallon! Elimination of middlemen's profits with company and dealer-owned retail stores... modern paint factories... streamlined merchandising methods... my own fleet of Diesel trucks to cut costs of obtaining raw materials and of shipping paint... All of these effective savings, which I traditionally pass on to you with every 2nd can of paint absolutely free of extra cost!"

WHY NOT JUST CHARGE HALF PRICE?

"My paints are quality priced because they are quality paints! It would be easy to cut the price per gallon in half, instead of giving a 2nd can free with every one I sell, but I refuse to 'second rate' my paints by giving them an unrealistic low price tag. I'll never classify Mary Carter paints with any of the cheap imitations being offered, nor will I ever downgrade my products by resorting to price reductions, discounts or special sales. I manufacture the same high quality paint for all my customers, at the same fair price for everyone."

Pocono Art Center
Moving To New Home

A VENERABLE structure, the second oldest house in the Stroudsburg, is now the setting for one of the newest projects here. Starting next week, the workshops of the Pocono Art Center are to move to the old stone house on the corner of Braeside Ave. and Brown St., East Stroudsburg.

NEW CENTER—Mrs. Helen Kollmeyer, president, welcomes children to new home of Pocono Art Center at Braeside Ave. and Brown St., East Stroudsburg. New center opens next week. (Staff Photo by MacLeod)

The setting is spacious, under ancient maples, with wide lawns for outdoor exhibitions, and plenty of off-the-street parking space. "It should be preserved as an example of the historic style of building. It is fitting to place in it fine pieces of early American furniture, with paintings of that period. Since it is a large house, with 16 rooms, we want to keep part for the past, and part for the future, with contemporary art to be displayed, so that a well-rounded program of art can be presented to the public.

"In other words, we hope to develop this remarkable old house into a permanent museum for the use of the public, with reference library, lectures on art, exhibitions, and workshops in the arts. Starting next Wednesday and continuing each week, Helen Kollmeyer will greet the children who want to draw and paint with her in the new workshops of the center from 1:30 to 3 p. m. On Thursdays from 2 to 3:30, Baron Reinhardt, Stroudsburg's own puppeteer, will conduct a class making puppets there. Monday afternoons at 2, a clay class for children will begin. The adult activities will also start next week at the new workshops of the center. The Theater Workshop met Tuesday night at Agnes Dyer's home, the Ridge Gallery, while Wayne Andersen will this week have his class in painting and drawing at David Harrison's studio in Mink Hill. On Thursday night at 7:30, Auditors are invited. For information phone HA 1-5988, the Pocono Art Center, during the day, or HA 1-0947 evenings. A sculpture workshop for adults will be initiated here, beginning next Monday. China painting classes are again scheduled under Frank Buchmann, on Friday nights. A weaving class is forming for Wednesday afternoons for adults. Those interested please phone Mrs. Robert Irwin, HA 1-5169.

Center's New Home Dates Back To 1775

THE story of the old stone house on Braeside Ave. at Brown St., East Stroudsburg, was told from family records by Dr. Robert Brown, of Brown St., a former superintendent of schools in Stroudsburg.

This stone house was built in 1775 by John Brown, who bought the tract of 400 acres surrounding it from Luke Brodhead who obtained it from William Penn by grant. John Brown fought in the Revolutionary War at Morristown and at Valley Forge, and became a captain of the Pennsylvania Militia at Fort Penn in the regiment of Col. Jacob Stroud. In those days there were unfriendly Indians still about, a constant threat to the settlers who farmed their holdings. One day, while the men of the Brown family were in the fields, Indian marauders approached the house. Shooting from a window, a colored servant killed one. The sound of the shot summoned the farmers, at which the Indians fled, pausing long enough, however, to fling the body of their dead companion into the cistern.

When John Brown died in 1827, his son Jacob inherited the property. Jacob's eldest son displeased his father in marriage, and was disinherited; thereby the second son, Robert, became the proprietor of the house and acreage. Robert was an ardent abolitionist, and maintained a station of the Underground Railway for slaves.

Runaway slaves smuggled to him were hidden in the old cistern, where the Indian had been buried, and now dry, and then transported under a load of hay to Tobyhanna, to the next station on the road to freedom. When the Lackawanna Railroad sought a franchise to pass through the area, it was first planned to build the railroad on the other side of Broadhead's Creek, but property owners of Stroudsburg objected, and held for high prices. So Robert Brown, for one dollar, gave them a grant of land from Forge Cut to a place near the present passenger station.

British To Send Troops To Africa

LONDON (AP) — The Colonial Office announced Wednesday that 1,400 British soldiers will go to the Cameroons and serve there while the African territory decides its own future.

The statement said: "This decision is in no way connected with events in the Congo." The area is administered by Britain as a trust territory but on the recommendations of the United Nations a plebiscite will be held there Feb. 11.

Esso Extra Gasoline, for example, has continually given them more improvements for smooth power and thrifty mileage than any other gasoline! Cancer Workers Question 263 Families In Study

OVER 1,100,000 cancer prevention study questionnaires are in the files of the American Cancer Society in the largest scale epidemiological study of cancer ever attempted, according to Dr. M. J. Leitner, president of the Monroe County Unit, ACS.

The long term study is taking place in about 1,100 counties in the United States, of which Monroe County is one.

In Monroe County, 34 volunteer researchers obtained questionnaires from 263 families, including 538 persons.

At least 52,000 families and 98,600 individuals in Pennsylvania will be checked early by the same volunteer researchers as the study goes on. Combining their findings with causes of death as recorded on death certificates is expected to bring to light relationships between completed about 100,000 of the habits and environment factors.

This is a tremendous project, Dr. Leitner said, and the Pennsylvania Division, ACS, reports that Pennsylvania will make up the largest group in any Division of the ACS.

"The study has enrolled slightly over two per cent of all Americans between 45 and 59, and nearly two per cent of Americans between 45 and 74."

Because cancer strikes more persons in upper age groups, the American Cancer Society is particularly interested in these people. During the six years of the study, the volunteer researchers who first obtained the questionnaires will make annual checkups on the group they originally saw.

Statisticians of the ACS are

Gas Firm Told To Adjust Rates

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Trade Commission Wednesday ordered the General Natural Gas Corp., Monticello, N. Y., to stop charging different prices to competing customers.

The consent order, agreed to by both General Natural and the FTC, also applied to a subsidiary firm, Sungas Products of Pennsylvania Inc., Scranton, Pa.

FTC charged in its Feb. 15 complaint that some customers paid $4.95 for a 100-pound cylinder of the companies' liquefied petroleum gas while others were charged $10 to $12. The favored and unfavored customers compete with each other in reselling the gas, FTC said.

Dam Wall Collapses, Drowns Lady In Yard

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A reservoir wall broke in suburban Penn Hills Wednesday unleashing a thundering wave of water that swept a housewife from her yard to her death.

Mrs. Jean Aber, 39, was in the yard of her home about 600 yards from the two million gallon reservoir when the 15-foot high wall broke.

The wave of water—estimated as high as 30 feet — thundered down a ravine, picked up Mrs.

Aber and swept her several hundred yards from her home. Two men found her body pinned against a tree by a heavy timber.

Two of her children, Robert, 11, and James, 10, were at home but escaped injury.

The rushing torrent of water did not touch any houses as it roared down the ravine.

Witnesses said the wall of the Wilkensburg-Penn Hills Water Authority Reservoir bulged, then opened like a gate.

"I heard the thunder coming and wondered what was up," said Tony Ciminaro who lives nearby. "We saw this wall of water coming down, tearing out trees and sweeping away an auto."

The torrent of water ripped out telephone lines, cutting off service to 162 homes. It also swept away a cement mixer and other equipment of the Pitt Construction Co., which was doing excavating work below the reservoir.

After whipping through the ravine, the wall of water emptied into the Allegheny River without causing any more damage.

Mrs. Aber was apparently the only victim. Her husband was at work. A daughter, Jean, 13, was at a camp and another son, Douglas, is in the Navy.

Oregon Territory was organized in 1948, and admitted to statehood in 1959.

Scaffolding Breaks

LONDON (AP) — A section of scaffolding weighing 40 tons broke loose from a store building and collapsed into a busy street Wednesday. Four men and a woman were injured, none seriously.

You're lucky you got it!

The officer stopped you because you did something dangerous—something that might have caused a serious accident. Better thank him; he may have saved you from tragedy.

Of course you're a good driver. Almost everybody is—most of the time. But last year, nearly 40,000 Americans died in traffic accidents, most of them killed by good drivers who took just one foolish chance.

So when you get a traffic ticket, think what might have happened—and count yourself lucky!

Help stop senseless killing on our highways. Drive safely yourself. Insist on strict law enforcement for your own protection. Work actively with others to support your local Safety Council. Remember—where traffic laws are strictly enforced, deaths go down.

Just Between Us—

—By Bobby Westbrook

Florence Italy

We have had a wide variety of roosting places in our flights through Europe. For the last two nights of our trip we are staying at the Pensione Belvedere on a hill. A pensione is something like a boarding house in that—in addition to breakfast which we have had included whether we were staying in a hotel, an albergo, gastauro or a zimmer—here we also have dinner—not ordered from a menu—but just served.

Moreover we get numbered napkin rings and save our napkins for the next meal. There is a comforting feeling of permanency about that after so many days of eating not only in a different place but often in a different country. About seeing the same people more than once—the pretty French girls—the twedy English couple—the young Italian couple.

And after ten days of having so many of us trying to decide between the variety of foods on the menu, it's restful not to have to decide anything—just eat what is put before us—particularly when it is all so good and served with such a flourish.

Besides, a swim in the pool makes a welcome change for Robin from feeding pigeons and touring art galleries and after a full day on the streets of Florence—the serenity of the garden overlooking the lights of the city is welcome, to us too. Only in Paris were the streets so crowded. It is incredible how many people crowd the narrow streets and not the shops of Florence which must be the shopping center of Italy.

We did some shopping ourselves this morning in the famous Straw Market. It was slow business for me. Reared in the tradition of fixed prices plainly marked, it is disconcerting to find that the price of most things in the Straw Market varies with the person who asks how much and that way can be bargained down. Add to that the complication of translating lira into dollars—and I was exhausted by the time we re-assembled for lunch on the banks of the Arno.

After lunch we practically had the city to ourselves for sight-seeing. The shops closed, the crowds thinned out, and we could see in all the glory of its pink, green, rose and white marble the cathedral of Florence with its austere—almost cold—interior—enlivened by two blue and white terra cotta by della Robbia, the picture of Dante with his poems in his hand, and the door through which Lorenzo de Medici fled to seek sanctuary.

The Campanile by Giotto and the Baptistery of St. John with its famous golden door with its bas reliefs of Old Testament stories held us long—but not so long as the Piazza Vecchio with its Loggia filled with great statues by Cellini, Donatelli and many others—also there is a memorial to Savonarola who was hanged and burned there in 1498.

However, for me, the artistic highlights of the day were found in the Gallery of the Accademia. The paintings by artists of the Tuscan school: Filippo Lippi, Botticelli, Roselli, Bartolomeo. But what really fascinated me were the statues started but never completed by Michelangelo before his death. Just emerging from the great blocks of marble are the tremendous limbs and torsos of men who now can never be freed from the imprisoning stone by the master hand. Makes you all the more grateful that his David—which dominates the gallery—was completed to stand forever as a model for the strength and beauty of young manhood.

Clematis Troubles Analyzed

CLEMATIS troubles: Many gardeners are asking why it is that their clematis (pronounced klem-at-iss) leaves suddenly wilt and die. This trouble may be due to leaf-spot and stem-rot disease. The fungus works down from the stems, girdling them and causing the upper parts to die. Individual shoots wilt suddenly and turn black, as if suffering from a loss of water.

Control: Pick off and destroy diseased leaves and infected stems as soon as you notice them. Spray with copper or Ferbam at two-week intervals, especially early in the growing season. Sometimes the plants will outlive the disease.

It might be a good idea to start new plants by taking cuttings from healthy tissue. To start your own clematis, take slips now, using young shoots about six to eight inches long. Place them in a glass covered box (or use plastic bags) and keep them out of direct sunlight until rooted. Most of the large-flowering named varieties are grafted, although if you take cuttings from a variety they'll come true. Clematis may also be started from seed sown in a cold frame in fall.

Felt Paper Mulch: Ever use felt paper for a mulch? It works between the rows of crops. After placing the felt paper down on prepared soil, you can plant seedlings in holes or slits made in the paper. This tends to keep weeds down, and moisture in. One gardener tells me he leaves a space between the felt strips so he can run his rotary mower down through and mow off the weeds.

Felt is cheap, may be used for two or more years. It isn't too pretty to look at, but it does make an effective mulch. Next week: Are ground corn cobs useful?

Night Blooming Cereus: What makes this plant so stubborn? First, remember that young plants bloom irregularly or not at all. Plants must be 6 to 8 years of age sometimes before they'll start to bloom. Several years are required for one to bloom, when started from cuttings. Usually, the plant has a better chance for blooming if you put it on a porch or under a bush during the summer months.

Keep it watered and hope it will flower for you during the summer. Like many cacti plants, the cereus is a shy bloomer and there isn't much use in trying to force it into bloom through the use of extra heat, fertilizers or by overpotting.

Just give your good cultural care, plenty of light and a feeding during the growing season. It should blossom for you, during the Summer months (the normal blooming time).

Homer Clark -- Champion Fiddler

F. L. of Stroudsburg: "For the past two years my lilacs have been acting strangely. The leaves have withered and turned brown, resembling a bush that's been pulled from the ground and allowed to die. The bushes are located between rambler roses. Would that have anything to do with it?"

No. Your trouble is due either to bacterial blight or phytophthora blight. Bacterial blight resembles fire blight of pears. Immature leaves turn black and die quickly, and even flower buds are completely blackened. Disease is evident usually in rainy seasons or in Spring and early Summer.

Control: Cut and burn diseased shoots. Spraying with Bordeaux mixture as soon as the disease is detected, is still recommended, although Bordeaux is regarded as an "old-fashioned" fungicide.

Another disease causing similar symptoms is the phytophthora blight. This fungus will kill or blacken shoots to the ground. This seems to be both a wet and dry weather disease.

Control: Cut out and burn blighted twigs and shoots. Spraying with Bordeaux mixture, dusting with sulfur, or spraying with actidione will help keep the disease under control. Keep in mind that the white-flowered varieties appear to be more susceptible than those with colored flowers.

A. H. of Effort: "I have mildew on my old fashioned rambler roses and just can't seem to lick it. What will check mildew?"

Mildew is a serious disease of roses, probably more widespread than the well known blackspot. While less devastating than blackspot, it is more promptly controlled, more immediately recognized since its effects are so disfiguring.

Mildew causes young leaves to curl, become coated with grayish white powdery growth on one or both upper and lower surfaces. Once leaves are infected, they seldom regain their normal shape.

High humidity, rather than presence of moisture favor growth of mildew. Oddly enough, during periods when leaves are actually wet, infection is not likely to occur.

Control: Weekly applications of a fungicide are needed. Sulfur dusted on will check it, but may burn foliage when temperature is above 85 degs. Copper compounds are still effective. Ferbam and Captain will not check mildew.

Karathane (Mildex) does a good job wiping out mildew but does not seem to be a preventative. Whenever material you use, be sure that you cover both upper and lower surfaces of the leaves. Zineb or Maneb, 1 oz. to 4 gals. of water are also effective. Your garden supply store has these materials.

Four Homers Pace Sweep

National Stars Make It Two
In A Row With 6-0 Victory

NEW YORK (AP)—Willie Mays clouted a homer and two singles and Stan Musial, Eddie Mathews and Ken Boyer also hit home runs in the National League's 6-0 victory Wednesday over the American League for a clean sweep of the 1960 All-Star games.

The shutout, a combination eight-hit job by an assortment of six national pitchers, was only the third in 29 All-Star games. The Americans left 12 on base.

Only 38,362 turned out for Yankee Stadium's first All-Star game since 1939 on a hot, hazy and humid afternoon.

The Nationals, 5-3 winners in Kansas City Monday, cut the American's lead to 16-13 in the All-Star series with a record-tying blast of four home runs among their 10 hits off loser Whitey Ford of New York and four successors.

Early Scores
Mathews, the Milwaukee slugger, powered a Ford pitch deep into the lower right field seats with teammate Joe Adcock on base in the second inning. Mays, who had six hits in eight trips in the two 1960 games, lofted a homer deep into the lower stands in left in the third. He now has a nine-game all-star batting average of .438.

Musial, the 39-year-old St. Louis Cardinal favorite who was appearing in his 19th game, slammed a pinch homer into the upper deck in right in the seventh. It was his sixth All-Star homer, breaking his own record and smashing or tying a handful of All-Star marks.

Boyer, another St. Louis Cardinal, ended the scoring with a two-run homer into the lower stands in left after Norm Larker of Los Angeles walked to open the ninth.

Law Winner
Vern Law, who saved the Monday game at Kansas City for Pittsburgh teammate Bob Friend, turned back the Americans in the first two innings while the Nationals piled up two runs. Law thus became the winning pitcher.

Johnny Podres of Los Angeles, troubled by wildness, got through his two-inning chore by making Boyer of the Yankees pop up with the bases loaded in the third. Stan Williams, another Dodger, struggled through two innings and Larry Jackson of St. Louis, Bill Henry of Cincinnati and Lindy McDaniel of St. Louis finished up in that order with one inning each.

Ford yielded the homers to Mathews and Mays and left the game trailing 3-0. It was his second All-Star defeat. Chicago's Early Wynn pitched two shutout innings, Gerry Staley of the Sox yielded Musial's pinch homer and Gary Bell of Cleveland gave up the final pair on Boyer's clout. Detroit's Frank Lary pitched a scoreless eighth.

Crowd-Pleaser
The crowd got a tremendous charge out of Musial's home run. The Man batted for Williams in the seventh and drove Staley's second pitch into the upper deck.

Mays simply was tremendous. He opened the game by lashing Ford's first pitch to left for a single. Before the inning was over he stole third but was trapped off third a minute later on an attempted double steal. In the third he homered. After fouling out in the fifth, he singled off Detroit's Frank Lary in the eighth.

Ted Williams, the 41-year-old Boston slugger in his 18th All-Star game also drew an ovation when he pinch hit for Chicago's Minnie Mino in the seventh with teammate Frank Malzone on base. Williams singled sharply to right.

WILLIE CAUGHT IN A TRAP—Willie Mays of the San Francisco Giants is tagged out by Boston Red Sox third baseman Frank Malzone off third base during attempted double steal in first inning of All-Star game at Yankee Stadium. Assisting on play is Yankee catcher Yogi Berra. Umpire is Tom Gorman.

Bill Hartack, in riding 58 winners during the Gulfstream Park meeting, tied the record set by Joe Culmore in 1950.

Mexican Wins French Open

PARIS (AP)—Robert de Vicenzo of Mexico overhauled a six-stroke lead by Bill Johnston of Provo, Utah, Wednesday and won his second French Open Golf Championship in a blazing finish with 275.

Johnston finished in a tie for second place with Leopoldo Ruiz of Argentina at 278, three strokes back.

DeVicenzo, atoning for his collapse in the recent British Open, cut three strokes off the lead with a morning round of 68. He collared the pace-setters early in the afternoon and finished three shots ahead on a last round 65.

The Mexico City pro nailed nine birdies in his spectacular final tour of the 6,714-yard, par 72 St. Cloud course.

Injury Sidelines Patella;
Baugh Thinks He'll Stick

NICK Patella, former East Stroudsburg High School football star, was injured in contact with the New York Titans of the American Football League and has been sidelined for two days.

Sammy Baugh, the Titan coach, told the Daily Record by telephone from the team's Durham, N. H. training camp last night that Patella, a guard, pulled a leg muscle and has not had a chance to work out in front of the full coaching staff.

The squad was trimmed to 80 players today with another cut scheduled for noon Thursday.

Will Wait
"We will wait for Patella to fully recover from his injury before he works out again," said the former Washington Redskin great.

"He definitely will not be cut until we have had a good look at him," Baugh continued "and I feel certain that Nick will make the team."

Nick Patella . . . Out With Injury

New York team's top draft choices. An outstanding place kicker, Patella, was the Titans' leading scorer last year.

Baugh said that because of the injury, he has not had a chance to see Patella kick. The Titans open their exhibition season on Aug. 6 against the Los Angeles Chargers on the West Coast. The team will be reduced to 60 players by then.

R. C. CRAMER crushed Counterman's Drug Store 17-3 in an East Stroudsburg Little League contest yesterday.

The game was called after five full innings because of a shower, but Cramers managed to squeeze in a 10-run third inning.

In spite of a homer by Palmer of the Counterman's and a triple by Sidlosky, the Druggers could only manage to bring across three men, all in the third inning.

Bank Shades Hotel

THE FIRST National Bank shaded the Penn-Stroud 13-11 last night in a Stroudsburg Little League game played at the Stroudsburg Little League field.

The game, called after three and one half innings because of rain, was turning into a slug fest, with each team having a six-run second inning and a total of 24 runs scored in the three-out frames.

There were only two extra base hits for all the scoring, R. Shick of the Penn-Stroud and D. Cramer of the Bank each had doubles.

Taxing Profit On House

By William A. Doyle
Q. I am retired. My wife died recently. If I sell my home at a higher price than I paid for it, will I be required to report this on my Federal income tax return and pay taxes on my profit?

A. You are supposed to report this as a capital gain on your Federal income tax form. Whether or not you have to pay a tax on that capital gain depends on a William A. Doyle couple of things.

If you sell your "principal residence" at a profit and buy or build a more expensive home (again, for use as your principal residence) you do not have to pay a Federal capital gains tax on the profit you made on your old house.

Your new abode, in this case, must be purchased within one year before or after the sale of your old residence and you must move in within 18 months after the sale of your previous home.

For servicemen on active duty, these time limits are extended to four years.

If the new residence you buy or build is less expensive than your previous home, you are supposed to pay a capital gains tax on the amount realized by the sale that exceeds the cost of your new home.

In any case, the amount realized by the sale is the gross selling price, minus expenses—commissions, selling expenses and expenses for work performed on the residence in order to assist in its sales, such as redecorating expenses.

Those redecorating expenses must be for work performed "during the 90-day period ending on the day on which a contract is entered into and must be paid no later than 30 days after the date of sale."

It's unlikely that any of these provisions of the tax regulations will be any use to you. A retired person seldom sells his home to buy a more expensive one. These rules merely postpone the payment of capital gains taxes for people who move into bigger houses.

Q. I bought some stock in South Texas Oil & Gas Co.

some years ago. My broker tells me that the company is bankrupt and the stock is worthless. I wrote to the company but did not get an answer. Is the word of the broker proof enough for tax purposes?

A. It's usually proof enough for you to establish a loss for Federal tax purposes. To do that, you should get a letter from your broker stating that there is no bid in any recognized market for this stock and that, in the broker's opinion, the stocks are worthless. It will be extra helpful if the letter states when they became worthless.

If it's any consolation to you, you can establish a tax loss because of this. You establish that loss for the year in which the securities became worthless. You can file an amended tax return and claim the loss within seven years after the securities became worthless.

(Mr. Doyle will answer only representative letters of general interest in his column. He cannot answer phone queries.)

Court Restores Driver's License

HARRISBURG (AP)—A man whose driver's license was suspended before he was brought in to court to be tried for a highway death has gotten the license back, temporarily.

Merrill C. Perry of Harrisburg, won a court stay of the action from Dauphin County Judge Walter R. Sohn, who set a hearing for Aug. 29.

Perry was ordered to surrender his driver's license while awaiting trial in Tioga County Aug. 22 on the involuntary manslaughter charge which grew out of a traffic fatality last Feb. 7. Perry pleaded innocent.

Perry's attorney, Elmer E. Harter of Harrisburg, said the Department of Revenue's one-month suspension of the operator's license, effective this week, was "unlawful, unconstitutional, arbitrary and capricious."

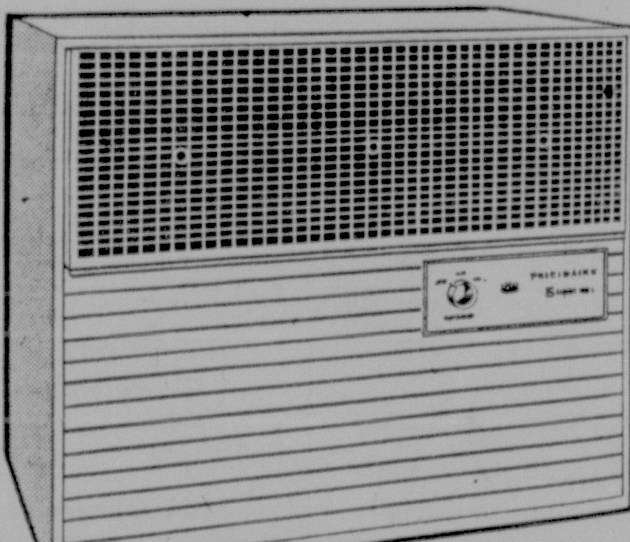

Plan State Visits
